anant_national_university The education system calls for a change! More so in a digital and polarised world, with challenges brought about by geography, economy, technology and ideology, among other factors. To deliberate on these challenges and devise plausible solutions, Anant National University, India's first DesignX university, and the University of Pennsylvania are convening a forum to examine the challenges and opportunities in creating and delivering high-quality education. The international design collaborative will host 30 delegates from five continents who have contributed globally to the field of education. Also joining us will be Dharmendra Pradhan, Education Minister, Govt of India and Prof. Mamidala Jagadesh Kumar, Chairman of the University Grants Commission.

Stay tuned as we share more details from this event!
