UNITEDWORLD INSTITUTE OF DESIGN at Karnavati University along with IIC, KIIF and SSIP organized a week long workshop for students to develop their actual Prototypes

It was an engaging workshop on Portfolio Development, led by renowned artist Karolina Piech. The workshop was inaugurated by Head of Institution Col. Surojit Bose and Director Academics Dr. K.K Singh, aimed to equip undergraduate students with the skills and knowledge to exhibit their work in a creative and distinctive manner.

The week-long workshop fostered innovation and interaction, providing students with an interactive master class on prototype development.

Karolina Piech, an esteemed alumna of the Royal College in Belgium, shared her own journey and showcased the significance of a well-crafted portfolio. She emphasized the importance of attention to detail, highlighting that it is the little details that make a portfolio truly stand out.

The workshop focused on two types of prototype creations: digital and physical.

The digital part highlighted the use of tablets and software with ready-to-use templates and design language.

On the other hand, the physical portfolio consisted of hard copies showcasing the various stages of the work process through photographs, rough sketches, prototype technical sheets, and testing.

Students gained insights into the process of capturing their progress from conceptualization to prototyping, understanding that this documentation is crucial for launching a successful professional career.

Over the course of 7 days, the students pushed themselves to create portfolios that represented their design process, progress, and development.

They learned how to effectively communicate their ideas, showcasing their skills and expertise through visually appealing and well-curated portfolios.

The workshop provided a platform for the students to showcase their entrepreneurial spirit and cultivate innovative thinking. Through the guidance of Karolina Piech and the dedicated faculties, the students embraced the importance of attention to detail and the value of capturing their progress.

As they venture into their careers, their well-crafted portfolios will serve as a testament to their capabilities and pave the way for future opportunities in the design industry.
