Unitedworld School of Liberal Arts and Mass Communication celebrated the “World Entrepreneurs Day” with a Mentoring session followed by Debate from by the students on a topic “9-5 Grind v/s Startup Hustle”

The event started with mentoring talks by The faculty in charge of the innovation council and the incubation team. They told that, while working in a startup, you are likely to have hands-on experience with how entrepreneurship works and a chance arises for you to pursue it as a career.

The students then divided themselves in two interest groups namely “9-5 Grind” and “Startup Hustle” where they were to debate upon what is good and why.

The debate helped students to strengthen skills in the areas of: -

- Leadership
- Interpersonal influence
- Teambuilding
- Group problem solving
- Oral presentation

The students were judged on specific criteria and then they were given marks by a panel of jury

They were told to provide substantial evidence to their arguments and Incorporate the element of problem solving and research before arriving to any statement.

The event ended with 9-5 Grind team being the winner of the debate as their statistical representation was stronger than the other team.
