7. A brief description of the outcomes achieved through the event or the message from the event: The interactive session provided valuable insights into the evolving global regulatory landscape governing drug delivery systems, medical devices, and combination products. Participants gained a clear understanding of international regulatory expectations, harmonization challenges, and the critical role of regulatory strategy in product development and lifecycle management. The session successfully bridged the gap between academic knowledge and industry practices by highlighting real-world regulatory case examples and compliance pathways followed by global pharmaceutical organizations. It emphasized the importance of early regulatory planning, risk-based approaches, and cross-functional collaboration in ensuring timely approvals and patient safety. Overall, the event enhanced regulatory awareness among students, researchers, and faculty, encouraged industry-academia interaction, and inspired participants to consider regulatory science as an integral component of innovation in drug delivery and pharmaceutical development. She explained CMC nad also illustrated different case studies giving example of pharmaceutical drug products, software as medical device and combination products. Prof Manju Misra extended vote of thanks and summarized the talk at end of the event. Students interacted with their queries on career aspects in regulatory affairs, work culture in MNCs, impact of specialization for career in RA and shifting of work/job profile from F & D/QA to RA and/or vice-versa. Overall students got much clarity on these aspects whereby they can make right decisions on their career.
