About the Event:

The seminar aimed to strengthen awareness among students about intellectual property protection. More than 50 participants along with faculty members from various faculties attended the programme.
The session was conducted by Dr. Purvang Dalal, Head, Department of Electronics and Communication Engineering. He explained how students can protect their innovative ideas and project outcomes through patents and highlighted the importance of proper documentation of innovations.

Outcome of the Event:

Dr. Purvang Dalal also provided practical guidance on preparing a strong Invention Disclosure Form (IDF), covering the key technical and innovative aspects that should be documented before seeking intellectual property protection. The session enabled students to better understand how to systematically document their innovations, assess the patentability of their ideas, and take the initial steps towards protecting their project outcomes through patents.
